

CREATING YOUR OWN READING RIVER

As this week is World Book Day we would like you to create your very own READING RIVER!!

To create a reading river, all you need to do is draw the different things you have read! You could either just complete it using things you have read this week or try and challenge yourself and write about some of the stories you have read over this lockdown! Example could be anything from reading your assignments, to reading a food packet or even reading rule or text on games that you play!

Have a look at the examples below and how they have been presented! Using a piece of paper have a go at recreating one yourself!
